

7ICCH

Seventh International Congress on Construction History

Name: Kosykh

First name: Aleksandra

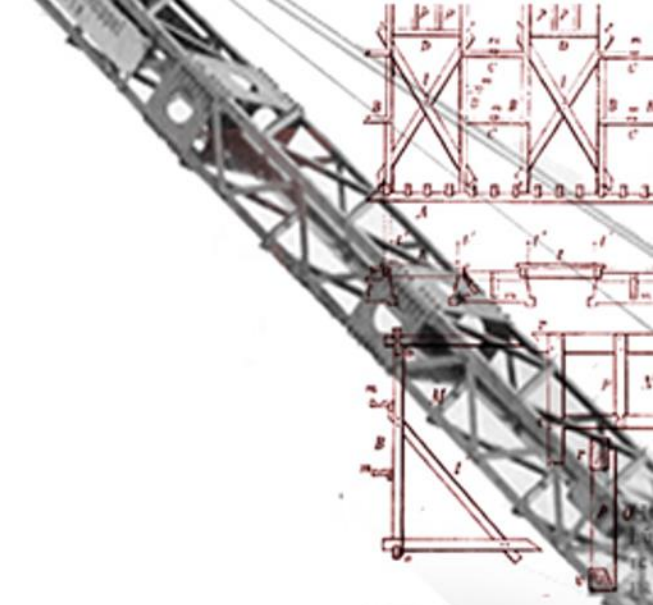

Function: Doctoral researcher, Member of the Research-Training Group “Cultural and Technological Significance of Historic Buildings”

Affiliation: Brandenburg University of Technology Cottbus-Senftenberg, Chair of Construction History

Country: Russia/ Germany

Email: aleksandra.kosykh@b-tu.de

CV: Aleksandra Kosykh is a civil engineer and a construction historian. She holds a bachelor’s degree in Civil and Industrial Engineering and a master’s degree in Underground and Civil Engineering from the Perm National Research Polytechnic University in Perm, Russia (2007-2013). Between 2013 and 2015, she worked as a structural engineer. In 2016 Aleksandra graduated from the Advanced Master’s Program in Structural

7ICCH

Seventh International Congress on Construction History

Analysis of Monuments and Historical Constructions that was offered at the University of Minho, Guimaraes, Portugal, and the Czech Technical University in Prague, Czech Republic. In April 2017, she became a member of the Research-Training Group “Cultural and Technological Significance of Historic Buildings” at the Brandenburg University of Technology Cottbus-Senftenberg, where she is currently working on her doctoral dissertation dedicated to the load-bearing iron structures that were built in Russia in the eighteenth century. She published three scientific articles on her dissertation topic in 2017-2020.

Website: <https://www.b-tu.de/dfg-graduiertenkolleg-1913/personen/doktoranden/2017/aleksandra-kosykh>

