CV: Christine is a founder and Co-Director of the Centre for Research into the Production of the Built Environment at the University of Westminster. Over twenty years of grant-funded research and publications have enabled her to establish a distinctive, multidisciplinary method using oral histories, together with documentary and visual research, to reveal 'history from below' and 'hidden histories' of the built environment. She has published widely on architecture and the construction industry in the twentieth century, with a focus on industrialisation and standardisation, and also on the role of women. She recently led the Leverhulme Trust funded oral
