

7ICCH

Seventh International Congress on Construction History

Name: Dessales

First name: Hélène

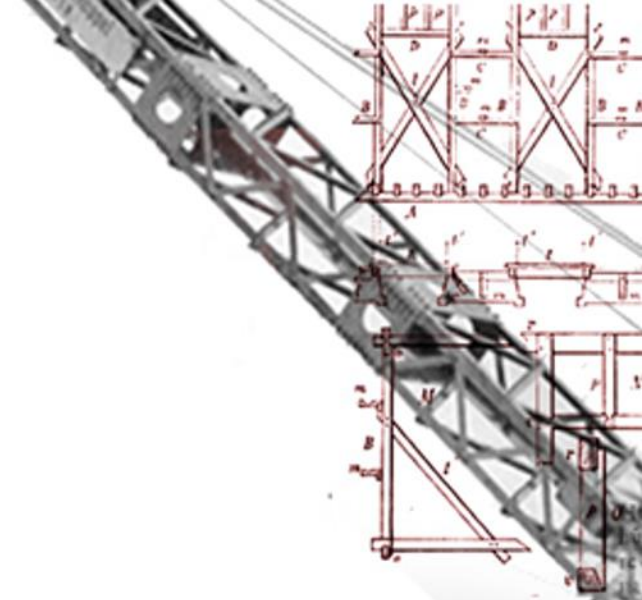

Function: Lecturer in Roman archaeology

Affiliation: Ecole normale supérieure/ PSL University

Country: France

Email: helene.dessales@ens.fr

CV: Hélène Dessales is lecturer in Roman archaeology at the Ecole normale supérieure. She was fellow of the Ecole française de Rome (2000-2003) and junior member of the Institut Universitaire de France (2012-2016). Since 2002, she has led several field missions, in France, at Barbegal and Genainville, in Spain, at Itálica and in Italy, at Ostia antica and Pompeii (as editor of a forthcoming monograph on the still unpublished Villa of Diomedes, in Pompeii). She is one of the organizers of the three recent international workshops on building processes in the Roman world. She teaches archaeological methods and the history of Roman construction. From the perspective of history of technology, she studies building processes in the cities of the Roman word and more specifically hydraulic systems and aqueducts.

7ICCH

Seventh International Congress on Construction History

Website: <http://www.archeo.ens.fr/Dessales-Helene.html>

